About Us

I have been closely studying the supply chain efficiency of our horticultural produce particularly in Maharashtra during my involvement to organise regular supply of fresh produce for the cash & carry store we have set up in Mumbai. The Maharashtra farmers sell their produce in various regulated markets set up by state APMC. One needs to have a license to trade in those markets and also a separate license to store and sell those fresh horticultural produce. I have observed that we produce good quality fruits and vegetables that compares well with the produce of any other country in global trade. India, therefore, can become a significant player in global trade in horticultural products. Globalisation, however, has made world trade on horticultural produce fiercely competitive for the last few years.
