About Us

Agilent Life Sciences and Chemical Analysis is a leading global provider of instrumentation, supplies, software and services to the life science and chemical analysis markets. With revenue of $2.7 billion, the group accounted for approximately 50% of Agilent's $5.4 billion of total revenue in 2010. Their 8,000 employees serve more than 25,000 customers in more than 100 countries.

Prior to 1999, Agilent Technologies was a part of Hewlett-Packard (HP). In 1999, HP announced a strategic realignment, creating an independent company that included HP's test and measurement, analytical instrumentation and medical businesses. This new company, Agilent, became fully independent in June, 2000.
