About Us

Though Calcutta Sweets emphasise on constant innovation we do not give away with the heritage of Bengali confectionery. The recipe of each item has been kept unchanged through all these years. The legendary sweets like sorrabri, sor bhaja, kachagolla, abarkhabo sandesh, mihidana, sitabhog, patisapta, lal misti doi, rossomalai and our most famous chandar payesh are still prepared the same way it was used to be prepared a century ago with the exactly same procedure utensils following the same recipes. Calcutta Sweets still follow the old age procedures, ingredients, and the original recipes. Trademark Bengali utensils like lohar petano kadai and kather taroo ( long wooden spatula made of shegun and saal wood ) are used to make sandesh. Fuel like charcoal is being still used to make some rare delicacies to give that subtle flavour. Calcutta Sweets give keen importance on procuring our raw materials and ingredients because it is the major aspect which decides the quality of the finished products. Compromise is never made on quality. Only branded materials or reliable old suppliers are entertained at our organisation. Fruit pulps and pieces are used to make different varieties of sweets. Artificial colours and flavours are mostly avoided to maintain the hygienic value of all the products.
