About Us

The name "Etikoppaka" brings to mind the beautiful lacquer finished wooden artifacts. It is an age old skill specific to the village Koppaka on the Eru (River Varaha).The artifacts are named after the village they are produced in and are called Etikoppaka products. Etikoppaka is a small village with a population of around 12,000, situated at a distance of about 65 km South of Visakhapatnam in the district of Visakhapatnam in Andhra Pradesh, India. While the main occupation of the people of Etikoppaka is farming, more than 200 people of the village are artisans. Their livelihood revolves round manufacturing of toys, artifacts, curios and novelties from wood and lacquer such as candle stands to vermilion boxes; ear rings bangles, toys, mythological figures and carvings

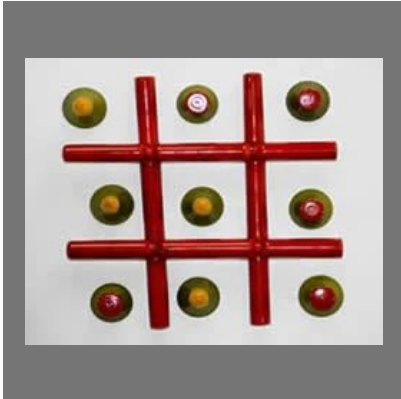

Wood craft artesanThese artifacts are made of wood and coloured with natural dyes harvested from roots, leaves, fruit, seeds, bark and lacquer. The wood generally used is soft (Wrightia tinctoria) and has a very fine grain. Women and children gather the wood from nearby hills of the Eastern Ghats and leave it to dry in their courtyards for seasoning. This being a cottage industry, each artisan works in his own little hut, still using the primitive tools that his forefathers had used. These magnificently coloured articles are nontoxic and environment friendly. They are rich in colour and are a feast to the eyes. No synthetic dyes or material are used in these products in any form thus making them safe even...
