About Us

Kolhapur is a blend of ancient tradition and modern influences. It is a beautiful city, situated in the south west corner of Maharashtra, India. The city is on the banks of River Panchganga and reflects a rich heritage along with a growing industrial sector. In 1945, excavations on the Brahmagiri hill in Kolhapur revealed the existence of an ancient town dating back to the Roman era. One of the most important cities of Maharashtra, Kolhapur had different dynasties ruling it in the past, but it was under the rule of the Marathas that it became a cultural hub with an active drama, music, painting and craft scene. The city is also dotted with temples built by the Satavahna kings. Of late, Kolhapur has become a prominent centre for the Marathi film industry.
