About Us

From bell-bottom pants to ripped jeans and bold-colored Kurtas to printed t-shirts, the fashion statement of Indian men and women have changed with time. Today, the Indian textile industry is estimated around 108 billion dollars and is expected to reach $223 Billion by 2021. To support this growth, it is also estimated that the textile industry would require around 10 million trained workers, which would be a herculean task if we continue to provide fashion education focusing on urban population. Though, there are good number of fashion technology institutes today covering wide range of geographical locations to provide quality education for students belonging to different social strata, Nitin Magar, Founder and President of Maharashtra Kala Shikshan Prasarak Mandal, is considered as one of the early movers in this sector. In 2001, Magar established Indian Fashion Academy (IFA). "Talent is everywhere, but many are not ready to join the fashion industry because of the language barrier. When we established IFA, our focus was on providing education to all. Therefore, we started teaching the concepts of fashion in vernacular languages such as Hindi and Marathi," explains Magar. To fulfill the dreams of the forbidden ones, Magar and his team had to overcome a lot of difficulties in the initial stages. They created a curriculum in Marathi and Hindi and became the only institute in Maharashtra to start a special division for vernacular students. As a result, in its...
