About Us

An integral part of the Henkel portfolio since 1997, LOCTITE is known for quality adhesives and sealants. Since the development of anaerobic technology, more than fifty years ago, LOCTITE products have become vital components in several machines and assemblies across industries. Considering today's competitive markets, organizations need the capacity and flexibility to respond quickly to new challenges. We meet these requirements with intensive research and development, resulting in the most technically advanced range of products. Our portfolio is designed to speed up manufacturing processes, reduce costs, improve quality, and comfortably meet international and domestic market standards. LOCTITE products provide solutions across the whole spectrum of adhesive technologies and manufacturing processes. They are used in markets as diverse as electronics, automotive, aerospace, biomedical etc. LOCTITE offers much more than just outstanding products. It provides effective solutions to specific problems in a wide range of industrial environments. LOCTITE engineers, chemists and sales people work with customers to understand and solve their problems. Developing ideas and concepts into real solutions, they combine resources to create advanced technology for the benefit of their customers.
