About Us

For over 60 years, Tupperware has been creating a niche for itself in the business world, making a difference to the lives of millions through its innovative storage products and extremely attractive business opportunity. In recent years, Tupperware has made tremendous inroads into becoming a true global entity. In 2000, Tupperware brands corporation acquired Dallas-based BeautiControl, followed by the acquisition of the Sara Lee Corporation's direct selling business in 2000. These advancements brought an increasing product diversity to brand Tupperware. In order to reflect this diversity, Tupperware Corporation changed its name to Tupperware Brands Corporation in 2005. These acquisitions were in line with the Company's corporate strategy to add premium consumable items to their product category mix. They also boosted the Company's global portfolio to eight champion brands and changed the Tupperware Brands Corporation into a multi-brand, multi-category, direct sales conglomerate with a worldwide sales force of over 2 million. Despite the success and astounding growth of Tupperware Brands, the Company's mission and passion to enlighten, educate and empower customers and their families tops the priority list. Enlighten To share insights & provide products and knowledge that makes life simpler and more enjoyable for families. Educate To provide smart, simple solutions that enable customers to save time, money and effort while leading active and healthy lives....
